

What is Adult Learning?

Adult learning is a process that is self-directed and experiential. It is a process that is driven by the learner's own needs and interests. Adult learners are typically more motivated and more engaged in their learning than younger learners. They are also more likely to learn from their own experiences and from others who have had similar experiences. Adult learning is a process that is ongoing and continuous. It is a process that is not limited to the classroom or to formal education. It is a process that can occur in a variety of settings, including the workplace, the community, and the home.

Adult learning is a process that is self-directed and experiential. It is a process that is driven by the learner's own needs and interests. Adult learners are typically more motivated and more engaged in their learning than younger learners. They are also more likely to learn from their own experiences and from others who have had similar experiences. Adult learning is a process that is ongoing and continuous. It is a process that is not limited to the classroom or to formal education. It is a process that can occur in a variety of settings, including the workplace, the community, and the home.

make them different from younger learners. Adult learners are typically more motivated and more engaged in their learning than younger learners. They are also more likely to learn from their own experiences and from others who have had similar experiences. Adult learning is a process that is ongoing and continuous. It is a process that is not limited to the classroom or to formal education. It is a process that can occur in a variety of settings, including the workplace, the community, and the home.